Holiday Survival Guide

"Your health is our priority."

Holiday Survival Guide

We are so excited that you have made your health such a priority. With the party and holiday season fast approaching, use this guide to help you sail thru and continue on the way to your goal. Here, we will be providing some sound TIPS FOR SUCCESS, as well as a number of 'safer' recipes. Some of them are not 'perfect' and that's OK, but we promise they are all safer than your Aunt Becky's Sweet Potato Casserole. :)

Take some of the recipes to your events during the season...just maybe your new attitude and healthy way of life will inspire those around you to do the same!

Remember that the ACTIVATE plan is all about sustainable steps (and RESULTS) to help keep you on track for the rest of your life!

TIPS FOR SUCCESS

1. Map your course!

Go in with a plan. Seriously. Pre-determine that you are not going to go crazy then end up being frustrated and bloated for the rest of the day, weekend or season. How will you approach the day? What will have to happen for you to enjoy it, but also feel good physically and emotionally about how you ate? If you have a target you will be way more likely to at least get close. No plan at all typically results in certain chaos. You've probably heard it said that if you fail to plan you are planning to fail.

2. Do it together!

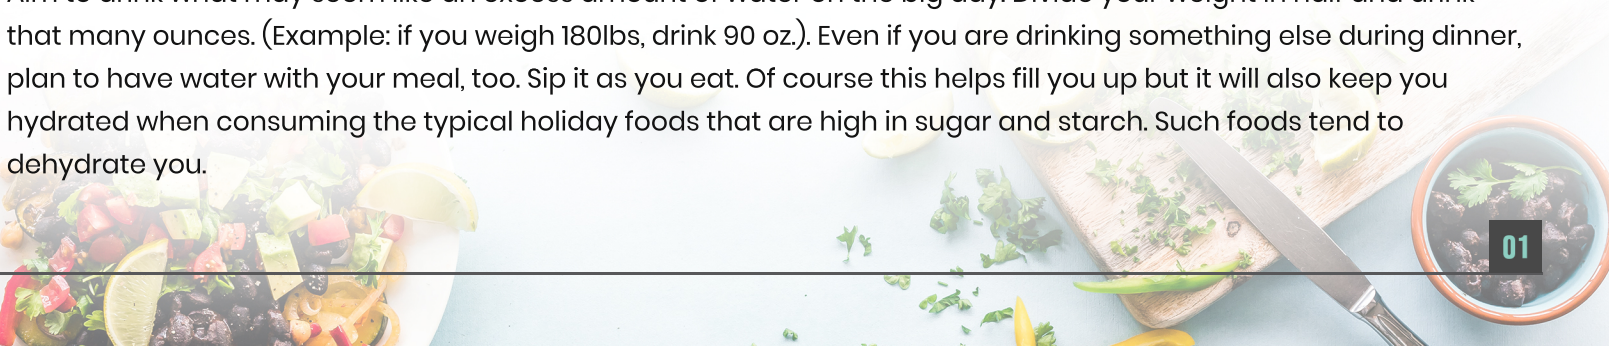

Get an accountability partner. Is there someone else who will be at the gathering who is also trying to be sensible about the day - or even currently trying to lose weight? Maybe your spouse can help you, or a favorite relative. Connect with them beforehand. Sit by each other at dinner. Check on each other as the day goes and subtly encourage one another. Don't make a big deal of it. Just know inside that you and that person are going to walk away from the feast feeling good about how you did.

3. Head off the Hunger!

Eat a little bit before you even go. A sensible and light snack or salad before you head out will prevent you from rolling in to the gathering and immediately grabbing a handful of junk to shove in. If you don't arrive completely famished you will be more likely to make selections in line with your plan once you arrive.

4. Prioritize your Agua!

Drink water before you head to that big meal. Start in the morning. Dehydration tends to increase your appetite. Aim to drink what may seem like an excess amount of water on the big day. Divide your weight in half and drink that many ounces. (Example: if you weigh 180lbs, drink 90 oz.). Even if you are drinking something else during dinner, plan to have water with your meal, too. Sip it as you eat. Of course this helps fill you up but it will also keep you hydrated when consuming the typical holiday foods that are high in sugar and starch. Such foods tend to dehydrate you.

5. Be Strategic!

Bring some of your own food. Maybe an extra side dish or two that you know you will focus on eating. Bring healthy food to be nibbling on as everyone does the standard pre-dinner grazing as they gather and visit. Pick the lesser evils. Fill up on tasty nutrient dishes during your meal. This will cause you to eat less junk after. Search out and prepare a dessert that is sugar free and tasty. There are healthy recipes in this 'survival' guide.

6. Start Smart.

When the meal is served, start with a light and healthy first round. There are a lot of studies showing that people eat less overall when they begin their meal with a green salad. Regarding the first thing typically eaten: ditch the dinner rolls! Then try to fill your plate in a way that you can actually see the plate between the various foods. Your plate does not have to resemble a mountain.

7. Eat consciously!

Take your time. It's not a race! You've heard it before, but really focus on chewing each bite more times than normal on this day. Take smaller bites. There's no need to shovel it in. Focus on enjoying conversation with those you are with rather than diving headfirst into your plate of food. In reality, your body needs time to become aware that you are full. Taking your time allows this to happen.

8. Choose just one!

It's understandable if you just can't make it without that slice of pumpkin pie (or whatever holiday dessert you love). After all, it's a holiday! So, give yourself a bit of a break. Yet, rather than having a full slab of every dessert that 6 or 8 different people chose to bring, make a selection. Take a small, sensible size of ONE dessert. Enjoy that dessert with others. Savor it. Feel good about your decision and control. Then move on!

9. Burn at least SOME calories!

Of course, it is tradition to pig out then fall onto the couch in a semi-comatose state to lounge around after a big meal. You can still do that ... some! But, make it a part of your plan to also get out and move some. Be intentional. Bump up your metabolism a bit. Set the time you will do this, and ask who wants to join you. Maybe that accountability partner will. Maybe nobody will. If that's the case, quietly slide out and get your movement in. You will be very happy you did!

10. Remember the WHY!

Bear in mind what the day is really about. It's called "Thanksgiving" not "Tons-a-Eating". So, give thanks. Count your blessings. I'd guarantee there are plenty. Spend time and energy emphasizing those things. When you do this, the focus on food will fade.

Now, for a few recipes to keep you on track!

A few quick sidenotes:

- If you choose a dairy-free diet, butter in all recipes can be substituted with coconut oil or your preferred fat.
- Also, we always recommend staying clear of alcohol for best health and results, however, we do know that a holiday libation may be something you wish to partake in. With that in mind, you will see some alcohols listed as optional additions in the HOLIDAY COCKTAILS section.

Green Beans with Mustard Lemon Sauce :

- 1 lb Green Beans
- 2 tsp Butter
- 1tsp Dijon Mustard
- 1/4 Lemon
- Dash of Salt
- Dash of Ground Pepper

To make the green beans, trim 1 lb. of green beans and cut them in half crosswise. Bring 1/2 a pot of water to a boil. Add the green beans, cover, reduce the heat and steam them for 6-8 minutes until they reach desired tenderness. (I find that I need closer to 10 minutes for larger beans). Drain them and return them to the pot. (I let them sit in the pot a bit to let off steam, as the sauce does not stick well to wet beans.) In a separate pot, gently melt 2 tsp. butter and then add 2 tsp. Dijon mustard (equal parts butter to mustard). Whisk vigorously until an emulsion forms (like mayonnaise or hollandaise.) Add the juice of 1/4 lemon, and salt and pepper to taste. Pour over the green beans and serve immediately.
